Picture This! Operation Overload Hits the Highway

Here is a variation on the familiar long piece of wood sticking several feet beyond the back of a vehicle, with the obligatory red flag suggesting that the violator hasn’t completely forgotten about maintaining a semblance of safety. We don’t know what’s in these barrels, but even if they are empty, this load goes far beyond what the designers of this pick-up truck could ever imagine. It wouldn’t take much to topple this load into traffic, with deadly consequences. (Photo source unknown).